

Mini-Medical School: Community Education Fall Series 2012

presented by
Central Maine Medical Center

This series will explore “living long, living well; quality life through health and wellness”

OCTOBER 15

“Care Management in a Reform Environment”

The opening lecture will explore how care management is a common factor in the evolution of the American healthcare system, focusing on the impact of the changes that are occurring.

Deanna M. Rice, system director of care management at Central Maine Medical Center

OCTOBER 22

“Strong Families, Strong Kids, Strong Communities: How Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACEs) Affect Our Lives”

This presentation will consider how ACEs impact the health, education, economy and the vitality of Maine communities, and how communities can marshal collective resources to prevent ACEs.

Sue Mackey Andrews, founder and president of Solutions Consulting Group

OCTOBER 29

“Why Integrating Care Is The Healthy Thing To Do”

What integrated care is, why it is important and how it can be done utilizing examples of existing program designs and outcomes.

Catherine Ryder, executive director of Tri-County Mental Health Services (TCMHS)

NOVEMBER 5

“Population Health: What Does It Mean For Our Community”

The focus of the presentation will be population health and the role it plays in a community, touching upon social determinants of health, characterizing morbidity and mortality in a community through data collection and surveillance, and public policy (including the Affordable Care Act).

Heidi Mallis, district field epidemiologist with the Maine Center for Disease Control (Maine CDC)

NOVEMBER 12

“The Obesity Epidemic”

The discussion will consider the link between obesity and cancer, the cost of obesity, and cardio-metabolic issues, as well as treatment and prevention

Jamie Loggins, M.D., bariatric surgeon, Central Maine Bariatric Surgery

DATE & LOCATION

The series starts on October 15
6:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

All programs will be offered at the Auburn Public Library in the Androscoggin Community Room.

Interpreter services are available upon advance request.

FOR MORE INFORMATION

Anyone wishing to register for any of the programs, or seeking more information, is urged to visit www.cmmc.org/events, email prevention@cmhc.org, or call 795-8448